

The Power of DMT

and my experience of the afterlife.

I am not a drug taker (nor drinker for that matter). I had heard of DMT but it wasn't until I was ready did DMT find me. I only took it a handful of times and this experience I am sharing here with you was the last one. After this experience my life changed completely, my questions had answers and I no longer needed DMT.

What is DMT?

N,N-Dimethyltryptamine (DMT or N,N-DMT) is an endogenous neurotransmitter, meaning that the human body already produces it. DMT is a serotonin agonist; an agonist means it interchangeably binds to the same 5-HT neural receptors as serotonin.

Depending on the dose and method of administration, its subjective effects can range from short-lived milder psychedelic states to reality shattering, unimaginable visuals that can include entities and/or the most powerful spiritual experiences which are far beyond ANYTHING you could dream of. My experience below was that reality shattering, ego destroying and fear eliminating journey beyond anything my mind could create.

What you witness if you break through is a peak into the after-life. If you hit the jackpot and push all the way through, you not only see the after-life but you understand the hows and whys (including where do we come from and why we are here). That sounds hard to believe I know.

Governments have known about DMT for decades and have banned it because they know what it shows you. Answer me this; how can a chemical that we ALL produce each and every night be illegal? The problem they face with DMT is that it is life changing. Once you've broken through and come back you see the World for what is truly is and your role within it.

How do I know DMT IS NOT a psychedelic drug?

With a normal psychedelic like LSD your brain can still interpret what it sees, it understands what it sees. With DMT however it is completely different because your brain cannot understand or grasp what it sees. It is totally outside of anything you could ever imagine.

The other difference with DMT is that you are in complete control of your faculties the whole way through. At no stage do you feel you are "tripping". You are fully awake and aware that you've just been hurled through our spec of reality into the immense truth behind this reality. You move into a World outside of time, matter and outside of any boundaries your mind can deal with or create. It usually lasts 10 minutes or so and within minutes of returning back here you are completely normal.

A person, devoid of the experience, will never understand the sheer scale of what has been witnessed by the person taking it. It is easy to postulate that what was witnessed was what the mind created.

The problem for the person taking DMT is that there are no words in any language to accurately describe much of what was seen. For the most part what is seen is so far outside of anything imaginable that even your own mind is in awe of the experience.

How do you describe the indescribable? How do you explain the impossible? The experience-teller is so limited by words that often what was seen cannot be said.

I have seen what many would describe as an angel (see my experience below) but the moment I say that the person who hasn't seen what I saw conjures up images of winged humans. That is infinitely understating what "it" is. This "angel" is not solid, the outline can barely be seen. Her brightness, yet super-sharp clarity, cannot ever be justly described. Her touch made every single last atom in my body below and my soul up there explode in the most intense joy and happiness.

I was taken to where they/we come from, our life-between-life. It is the energy of everything that creates it, the feelings that control it. Simply describing it isn't enough because you need to also experience the energy, emotion and harmony to fully understand how it works and how it takes form.

I didn't find DMT, it found me when I was ready. The few people I have spoken to about it said exactly the same thing. It is absolutely not a play-thing for your mind. It rips apart the very foundations of beliefs and can change every aspect of your life.

When you come back, after those short few minutes, you remember bits of it but there is an underlying feeling of "everything is ok" coming from your soul. No longer does fear play a part in your life. Controls? gone. Ego? Gone. It is life-changing, non-describable and the most intense experience you will ever have on this planet.

BE WARNED!

DMT is NOT a play drug, it should not be used if you just fancy something different. If you think you are strong enough to handle an experience that could (and probably will) completely change your life then, and only then, would I advise it.

With DMT it is the world that is replaced, instantly, it's all gone! Reality is completely swapped out for something else vastly greater. It doesn't even retain matter, three dimensional space or linear time as reference points.

While you're there your mind is trying to rationalise what it is your witnessing but it simply has no language or any reference point at all to explain what you are witnessing.

Is it dangerous?

Only if you fear death by astonishment (thank you Terence McKenna!) You don't change but the World is instantly replaced, it dissolves this boundary and pushes you through to the place of no words.

You don't expect to be greeted by a being who tells you how vitally important it is that you are there and not to give in to astonishment. You don't expect to have the most difficult asked questions answered. The questions are not only answered but completely understood. The problem is our language doesn't have the capability to put into words what IT is. You can see the answers, feel the answers but you can't come back and DESCRIBE the answers.

My DMT Experience on 15th January 2013

On this occasion I took what I hoped was a death amount because I wanted to push through the veil we are trapped in to discover what is on the other side.

Initially I saw the usual geometric shapes but this time I felt a much greater pull as my soul pushed hard to leave my body suit. There was so much pressure against my body it felt like I could hardly breathe but as I lifted out everything changed!

All emotion had gone except for peace. Everything that seemed to matter in life now felt meaningless and laughable. I felt as if I had woken from a dream. I had moved from this tiny little slither of reality and went back home to the full expanse of our true reality.

How difficult it is to describe just how meaningless our problems are on this planet, how difficult to describe that we are the universe observing itself, how difficult for many to believe that we are all connected, we are all one with all things. We are each an infinite flow of energy that can slow down its pulse or vibration enough to experience the universe through these body-suits.

I felt my soul leave my body but I could feel my mind going up with it, lifting upwards towards the geometric shapes in front of me. As I was almost on top of them a doorway opened up and these geometric shapes seeped through into the next dimension, our home. It was truly the most incredible thing I have ever seen!

The meeting of the entity

The first thing I noticed was that time had stopped. I immediately became aware that I was now in a place where time, matter and distance no longer had any meaning.

Emotionally all I could feel was love and peace. There were no negative emotions here.

It was like being inside a blanket of calm.

I was still trapped in the geometric grid as it followed me through and I saw a transparent, deep blue and purple glowing hand reach down in front of me. I looked up and saw the most beautiful, incredible entity. My soul, mind and body below literally wept as this being smiled at me.

This picture below does the experience no justice. There are no words to accurately describe her or how it truly looked. This is about 5% correct and it's the closest image I have found to visualize it.

Geometric shapes surrounded her. Not in a trippy, LSD sense but geometric shapes that were part of her being. It was the most incredible, stunningly beautiful thing I will ever see in this lifetime but this picture still cannot come close to how beautiful she was.

This being was so bright and translucent that I could barely make out any features. I could see through this being and yet the glow was magnificent! Her touch made every atom inside me come alive, both soul and my body suit below. It was as if my entire existence was dancing with joy and love that smothered everything.

My soul instantly knew that I had been connected to this being for aeons, she was the one who stayed there for each of my lives to assist me when needed. My Brain couldn't understand any of it.

The soul works in partnership with the body. The body and soul are connected on earth but separate at death. The entities are used to seeing the soul returning alone but when the mind of the body accompanies your soul they get VERY excited because it is so rare that it happens. They sometimes skip and dance, sometimes they are positively surprised but mostly they are utterly thrilled that both parts came together and try hard for you to not give in to the experience and return back to the body too soon.

She took my hand and guided me up. The geometric shapes restricting me fell behind but I still had some kind of barrier, resembling a coral, in front of me. I asked what was this for and I was told that I was welcome here but for their and my safety I was to be an observer and I wasn't allowed too near, or to access the places I use between lives.

I could see other beings just like her but further away moving about in this place. It was light but in a way that is hard to explain. The energy/emotion of everything created the light. There was no real distance and it felt like I could be in all places in all times.

Still holding her hand she led me to near where they/we come from. I suddenly started to remember this place, my soul knew I had spent a lot of my time between lives here. My soul felt instantly at home while my brain was barely able to keep up with what was being observed. I could feel the real me was close by. I could see the location but couldn't see the real me inside it.

I asked a question I was simply told to remember and that's when it went completely crazy. My soul was asking tens of thousands of questions a second and it was receiving those answers instantly. My soul could keep up and comprehend every single answer. My mind could also see the questions and answers but had no way of keeping up, it was too much for my mind and yet my soul was laughing at my inability to do so.

An analogy of that experience:

Picture every person in Devon all standing together. Now picture that each person has a different book. Now imagine each person reading out loud, at exactly the same time. Now imagine that you could hear every word from every person and when each of them finished the book you could recite every word back to every person at exactly the same time. Utterly, utterly impossible but it was child's play there.

Infinity was tangible. Infinity was just like the ouroboros but because time and distance had no meaning infinity was just a play thing. You could be at the beginning or end or even at the moment of creation for that infinity. The questions and answers were infinite but all answers from all time could be answered at the same time.

The solid of our existence is the illusion. We cannot remember who we are because by knowing there is nothing to fear we cannot experience this human-based reality properly.

This meeting was to reassure me that the body I exist in is not who I am. My soul is an old one and it is possible to break the reincarnation cycle that I worry about.

Final thought..

Life on earth has changed for me completely. I care much more about living things. None of the troubles in this life amount to anything. When we are reborn we bring with us some of the emotion and experiences of other lives but they are locked in the soul and hidden from the consciousness mind. This "data" isn't in the mind, it's in atoms spread across time and space. Everything is connected and so is the data.

Some more for you to ponder...

We join these bodies during pregnancy at around the 3 month mark but during the pregnancy and for several months after birth we tend to leave the body quite often.

We are here and there at the same time. I call this a soul fragment. My soul in this body is simply a piece of the whole. The remainder on the other side cannot participate in much else because it is focused on what's happening here. Seventy years may be a long time here but there it ends almost as quickly as it starts.

We do choose our parents to some extent... we each have a goal we need to reach when we come into this life. We base the decision of the parents on which parents would help us towards that "goal". There could be a couple of options for parents or several. We tend to choose the ones that would help us with the "goal" rather than the ones who may be the best parents to raise you. Sometimes you deliberately choose really awful parents because they offer the best options to steer you towards your goal.

Whatever this goal is your life will keep steering you towards it until you have either accomplished it or you pass away before you could achieve it. If your life is forever repeating the same type of thing over and over again, there is a high likelihood that something on this repeating path is the one you need to learn before you pass.

There is no hell or damnation if you commit suicide but you will come back and repeat the same experience again and again, life after life until you reach your goal. This will be through choice and not force. You cannot progress if you don't reach your goal so you will want to keep going at it until you succeed.

Humanity tends to think that being rich or successful are the things to strive for but it is those who reach their goals that have the real success because whatever hardship was faced in this life won't need to be faced again.

We think of suffering as a bad thing but these seventy or so years in this body is just a heartbeat of time in the grand scheme of things. The body may suffer but your soul is simply experiencing it and cannot be harmed.

There could be one to five people in your life who have been connected to you many times before. It appears to me that there may be a small core group who can come in together to help each other, planned before we enter this World again. Personally I have discovered two in my life that are in this category.

At the moment of death there will be no fear and no doubt. You will start to wake up from this dream and will witness for yourself the place we come from...

Everything there has a clarity beyond what our eyes or mind can comprehend.
